PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCES AND PATRIOTIC SONG

Pledge of Allegiance

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one
Nation under God, indivisible, with Liberty and justice for all.

Pledge of Allegiance to Michigan

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of Michigan,
And to the State for which it stands, two
Beautiful Peninsulas, united by a bridge
Of Steel, where equal opportunity and
Justice to all is our ideal.

Star Spangled Banner

Lyrics by Francis Scott Key – 1814

Oh, say can you see
By the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed
At the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad strips and
Bright stars thru the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched
Were so gallantly streaming?
And the rocket's red glare,
The bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night
That our flag was still there.
Oh, say does that star-spangled
Banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and
The home of the brave?

THE GREAT FIRE OF 1881

By the late Walter J. Rummel

Many years of ruthless lumbering left a countryside of stumps, tops and slashing scattered over broad miles of the Thumb of Michigan and the fire of 1871 piled up additional layers of windfalls and other debris.

Then a drought in July and August 1881 created what turned out to be the largest and most volatile tinderbox in the history of Michigan. There were spotty fires in many parts of the Thumb during August, but never enough to concern anyone except the few settlers and farmers who lost a barn or a cabin.

That all changed in early September as hot, dry winds continued to blow and came to a whirling climax during the early morning hours of Monday, Sept. 5. Suddenly the entire Thumb seemed to erupt into one gigantic catastrophe that proved to be one of the most disastrous and widespread fires that the Midwest had ever seen.

The conflagration roared up from the southwest, cutting a central swath that engulfed more than two-thirds of the Thumb, leaving only the western section of Tuscola and Huron Counties and a few enclaves along the east shore of Huron and Sanilac counties unburned.

While huge areas were consumed as completely as the inside of a furnace, there were exceptions in many places as homes, farms, and individuals were saved as surely as if the hand of God had been placed over them as a protective shield. There were freak tragedies, and there were freak escapes.

Some people were saved by rushing into fields of green corn and burying their bodies in the soil; one man crawled into the carcass of an elk he had just shot and gutted; some families were saved by lowering themselves into dug wells. The largest number – 400 people – saved themselves by taking refuge in the new brick county courthouse in Bad Axe.

Men took turns pumping water and drenching the building through the day and night as the temperature in the building soared to 110 degrees. While the building and its occupants escaped destruction, more houses and other buildings burned in Bad Axe than in any other town although a few smaller villages were destroyed completely. In forested areas, the fire often appeared as a giant whirling ball of spitting flames that moved high in the treetops, igniting one clump and passing another.

When the fire finally burned itself out, there were 282 known dead, more than 3,400 buildings destroyed and almost 15,000 residents homeless. Many were blinded – some temporarily and some permanently – by smoke, gusting dust and flying ashes that traveled faster than a whirlwind and blotted out the sun for days. Dollar losses, as recorded a century ago, pale when compared with today's prices, but the destruction in buildings and timber, crops and animals was enormous.

The response of the American people from all parts of the country was most generous, with greatest help coming, of course, the Michiganians themselves. Chicago, it is said, donated liberally, perhaps in remembrance of the city's own fire tragedy ten years earlier. The disaster relief sent to Huron County marked the founding of Disaster Services for the American Red Cross, and the county is recorded as the first place in the U.S. where the American Red Cross flew to denote active service to the suffering.

While this brief account does not pretend to describe the Great Fire, it is meant only to call attention to the fact that this is an event that had as effect on every human being in the Thumb, and has been the subject of dozens of books and hundreds upon hundreds of news articles and essays.

HURON COUNTY – A BRIEF HISTORY

Huron County is located in the “Thumb” area of Michigan. It is surrounded on three sides by water – Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron. The county has a land area of 824 square miles, which is 139 square miles greater than the average for the other 82 counties in the state. Of the 28 townships in the county, only 15 are about 36 square miles. The irregular shore, 93 miles long, makes the other 13 townships irregular in size, ranging from on square mile (Pointe Aux Barques) to 44 square miles (Sherman Township).

Bad Axe is the county seat and the largest city and has a population of just over 3,500 people. Harbor Beach and Caseville are other cities in the county. The villages are Elkton, Kinde, Owendale, Pigeon, Port Austin, Port Hope, Sebewaing and Ubly.

Huron County ranks as one of the top agricultural counties in Michigan based on agricultural farm income. Major crops grown in the county are corn, dry edible beans, sugar beets, wheat and oats. Major enterprises include dairy, livestock and poultry production. Because of the natural beauty, ideal topography and sandy beaches, Huron County has an ideal setting for the tourism industry.

The shoreline developed for tourism offers numerous opportunities for vacationers. There are two state parks – Sleeper State Park and Port Crescent State Park and two roadside parks – Jenks Park and Brown Park. Also, Huron County maintains nine county parks along the shoreline, which are Caseville Park, Lighthouse Park, Stafford Park, McGraw Park, Wagener Park, Oak Beach Park and Sebewaing Park.

Although small industry and tourism has developed in the county, agriculture remains the chief source of income.
